Established in 1996, the Journal of Statistical Software publishes articles on statistical software along with the source code of the software itself and replication code for all empirical results. Furthermore, shorter code snippets are published as well as book reviews and software reviews. All contents are freely available online under open licenses. We aim to present research that demonstrates the joint evolution of computational and statistical methods and facilitates their application in practice. Implementations can use languages and environments like R, Python, Julia, MATLAB, SAS, Stata, C, C++, Fortran, among others. See our mission statement (/mission) for more details.

Support

FOAS

As a matter of principle, JSS charges no author fees or subscription fees. Our editors, reviewers, and programmers are volunteers. Universität Innsbruck, Universität Zürich, and UCLA Statistics provide support staff, website maintenance, website hosting, and some graduate student support. Because of our success and growth we do need more resources in the future. You can support us by becoming a member of the Foundation for Open Access Statistics (http://www.foastat.org/) at www.foastat.org (http://www.foastat.org/), and by contributing on their donation page (https://www.foastat.org/donate.html).
